Football 5-a-side

This article is part of a series produced by the British Council to help you learn English and learn about different Paralympic sports.

Football 5-a-side is played by visually impaired athletes using a ball with a noise-making device inside.

DID YOU KNOW?

I’d like to see Messi do that! FC Barcelona’s Messi, Neymar and Iniesta are three of the best football players in the world. If you watch or listen to one of Barcelona’s games, you will hear things like:

‘Neymar notices Iniesta on the left... he sees Messi... Messi goes past two defenders... goal!’

‘That was brilliant! Messi observed the goalkeeper off his line and the shot was perfect into the top corner.’

Think about the verbs in bold. They are all verbs of ‘seeing’. The three great players work really well together because they are always able to look and see where the others are. Commentators often say that they could play the way they do ‘with their eyes closed’, ‘blindfolded’ or ‘without looking’.

Despite what they say, Messi and company could not play the same if they really couldn’t see. But that’s exactly what Paralympic 5-a-side footballers do every time they compete in a game. Although they cannot see anything, they pass the ball to each other and score goals in the same way as players who can see!

I’d like to see Messi do that!

Rules and Classification for Paralympic Football 5-a-side

What is it?

5-a-side football is a type of football played on a smaller pitch, with smaller goals and a shorter match time than 11-a-side football. The rules are similar to 11-a-side football, but with changes for disabled athletes.

Who can participate in 5-a-side football at the Paralympics?

5-a-side football is open to visually impaired athletes.

Classification

Classification B1 (legally blind) only.

How is it played?

• Games are played between two teams, each with five players including a goalkeeper.
• The outfield players are visually impaired, but the goalkeeper may be fully or partially sighted.
• All outfield players wear eyeshades (objects to cover the eyes), which make it impossible to see. This means that players with different levels of visual impairment can compete together.

• The ball contains a noise-making object – a bell. This allows the athletes to hear the ball.
• Teams may use one guide, who stays off the field of play in a special guide’s area, to help with directing players.
• The pitch is surrounded by a wall that players can kick the ball against while playing (a rebound wall).
• There are no throw-ins and no offside rule.
• Each half lasts 25 minutes.
