

Myths and legends – Southern Africa

by Engeli Haupt

Activity 1

Before you read, decide which word or words go with which meaning.

1. tail feathers	2. lay an egg	3. terrifying
4. witch	5. hyena

- a. when a bird produces an egg from its body
- b. the long, soft things that grow from the back part of a bird's body
- c. a woman who can do magic
- d. a large African animal that eats dead animals and makes a laughing sound
- e. very frightening

The Impundulu

The Impundulu bird is said to live in Southern Africa. It is the size of a person and it has tail feathers that are red like fire. It is the king of storms. When it moves its wings, you can hear thunder, and lightning touches the ground where it flies down and lays an egg.

The Impundulu is also known to turn into a handsome young man, so it can talk to beautiful women. It is always thirsty for blood, which is why it kills mostly humans and cattle. When it is a man, it drinks human blood, while it will attack animals when it looks like a bird. As if that is not frightening enough, it is thought that this strange bird can live forever! This is because it is almost impossible to kill an Impundulu. People say that it can only be destroyed by fire; no other objects can hurt it.

This terrifying animal is normally owned by a witch. A witch can ask her Impundulu to give someone bad luck or make them fall ill. She can give the bird to her daughter before she dies. Some people think that these witches can turn themselves into hyenas. It is believed that the Impundulu bird sometimes rides on the back of a hyena. When a witch does not pass on her Impundulu, it can become an even more terrible monster. When it does not belong to anyone, it can go around killing and destroying without stopping.

Activity 2
